

The European Medicines Agency (hereinafter "the Agency") asks its applicants to use this checklist in advance of submission of an initial notification for parallel distribution.

This remained a political, rather than a legislative initiative, but it was nevertheless effective in creating the first European infrastructure in this area, and in placing European players very much in the lead ...

The Parallel Distribution (PD) register provides up-to-date information on parallel distribution notices checked by the European Medicines Agency to be in compliance with the conditions laid down in the ...

For general enquiries on parallel distribution, please send a question to the European Medicines Agency. Please indicate in the subject header that your question is related to parallel distribution.

In this guide, we'll walk together through what really matters: the actual tests your distribution box must pass, and the documents that prove it's worthy of that CE mark. By the end, you'll know exactly what ...

Antitrust rules prohibit agreements between market operators that would restrict competition, and the abuse of dominance. European Antitrust policy is developed from two central r

When in exceptional circumstances, several "blue boxes" are required for the different Member States; they should ideally have the same dimensions and appear on the same side of the pack.

Companies entering into agreements for the distribution of their products or services in the European Union should be aware of the EU competition rules and restrictions on vertical restraints.

This page lists questions about parallel distribution. The information is available as questions and answers, which the European Medicines Agency (EMA) revises as necessary.
